Monday -- 8 February 1954

1. I informed Mr. Burrus, of the Bureau of the Budget, that Mr. Houston had talked with Mr. Rogers and Mr. Minor at the Justice Department, and that they had said they would enter into an agreement with us to cover any investigative problems raised by S. 2308. They agreed that if satisfactory language could be worked out in the bill it might be one solution, but that no satisfactory language appeared in prospect which would cover both the purpose of the legislation and the needs of CIA. Mr. Burrus will keep us informed as to the progress of S. 2308.

2. I called Mr. Rogers, the Deputy Attorney General, and asked whether it would be possible for him to give CIA some advance warning on a confidential basis as to the Department's action in the [redacted] case. Mr. Rogers stated that he would bear this request in mind, but that he did not think that the Department was going to do anything "for a little while."

information may never be requested by the Committee. However, he is holding these figures in case he is asked. As Mr. Saunders had already gone to Capitol Hill, we could not carry through the suggestion that perhaps he bring back with him the car figures and the footnote regarding their sensitivity.
